A. P. V. A. and Its Friends Made Delightful Trip to Old Jamestown.

INSPECTED THE SEA WALL

No Exercises Held on the Island, But Occasion Was a Most Pleasant One.

the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities and its friends reached Richmond safe last night after a pleasant time spent on the lower waters of the James, and among the historic scenes of Jamestown.

The annual pilgrimage of the society to the little island, whereon was reared amid surrounding wild, the first permanent structure of English civilization in America, is always an occasion of note that attracts an attendance usually larger than it is possible to accommodate. Such was the case yesterday.

The steamer Berkeley, of the Old Dominion Line, was chartered to carry 550 people, and many in excess of that number assembled at the wharf expecting to join the party. It was a source of much regret to them and to the society that they had to be left behind.

The steamer left the wharf at 8 o'clock in the morning, and arrived at Jamestown at 2 in the afterneon. An hour was spent on the island, and at 3 o'clock the date. Such was the case yesterday.

The weather was beautiful, and the trip down the James was delightful. The party experienced much pleasure, observing and discussing the various points of historic interest between Richmond and Jamestown. The life aboard ship was made delightful on the return trip by card parties, music and other entertaining features.

No exercises were held at the island. The time was very limited and the party spent it inspecting the place and visiting the heary spots that are so pregnant with the history of early Virginia. Probably the most interesting feature of the day was the inspection of the sea-wall erected several years ago to save the little island from the "maw of the river." The handsome new residence of Mr.

wedding Thursday evening at 7 o'clock,
when their only daughter, Miss Olivo Quarles Mitchell, became the bride of Mr. Russell Gentry, in the presence of a large gathering of friends of the young couple. The entire lower floor was thrown open and presented a fovely
scene, being entirely covered with white

plants and cut flowers, by Mossmiller.
Promptly at 7 o'clock, as the sweet strains of the wedding march, from Lohendrin, burst forth under the skillful touch of Professor B. Bernard Burton, the bridal party entered: First, the leaning on the arm of her maid of honor,

Miss M. Flagg Mitchell, where they met
